

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law protections. Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has made unsolicited interruptions into my home by phone almost non-existent. I know now that when my phone rings, it is a friend or family member. I used to receive anywhere between 10 and 20 calls per week. Now, at most, I receive one call per week. I usually do not receive any telemarketing calls at all. Indiana's Telephone Privacy law is working wonders for my family. I do not think that the FCC should pass a law that would allow a lower standard of privacy for me here in Indiana. My state's law is great, and I hope the FCC will leave it alone.
